

The industry knows them as Human Resources Managers. We call them talent leaders.

Picture this. You're interviewing a prospect. Say, for the post of an Account Manager. And you pick up on the stray sentences. The occasional lisp. The spark in the eye when you speak about the Hitchhiker's Guide to the Galaxy. Or Blogging. You filter a perspective from the otherwise monotonous curriculum vitae. Suddenly, you identify a manager – someone with a free spirit. At Ogilvy, Talent Leaders are people with insight. They spot, nurture and envision career paths by reading between the lines of an otherwise pretentious resumé. They also have the uncanny ability to sift through and inspire existing talent in an organisation. They are listeners who double up as human filters to whisk up performance. We are looking for someone who can add a perspective and sieve out talent. A Talent Leader to be precise. Write to us if you have an eye, the experience and qualifications to back your belief.

Please email your resumé to lakmani.setunga@ogilvy.com
